AUTOMATING

THE CHALLENGE

Technology in the self-storage industry is incredibly fragmented, creating the need for storage operators to piece together different tools to manage their business. Operators are forced to supplement these disjointed tools with manual, difficult to manage, and error-prone processes, resulting in headaches, lost revenue, and inefficient marketing spends. These painful processes ultimately distract operators from where they should be focused: taking care of their customers and growing their business.

THE SOLUTION

Many operators recognize that the time and attention spent supporting these tools and processes should be refocused on managing day-to-day operations, maximizing revenue, and improving customer satisfaction. Operators need a solution that centralizes, prioritizes, and automates tasks for on-site management while still providing the customization necessary to meet the needs of their business. Storage operators need a comprehensive facility management solution that enables a tailored approach that form-fits to their business needs.
